Quest exhibits latest software tools at Property Professional Show 2011
10-11 May 2011, Stand C28, Olympia – London

Quest, leading software provider in the property valuation, mortgage fraud prevention and energy efficiency markets, will be showcasing a range of software tools that streamline surveyors and energy assessors' daily reporting tasks, at this year's Property Professional Show. Situated on Stand C28 within the Energy Assessor Zone, Quest will be providing demonstrations of the QuestCommercial online portal, in addition to its Home Condition Survey and Energy Performance Certificate software.

The QuestCommercial online portal provides a centralised quotation and ordering tool for accessing a wide range of services for commercial properties. This includes the ability to order mandatory Air Condition Reports, Display Energy Certificates and non-domestic Energy Performance Certificates.

Whilst the Home Condition Survey software enables members of BRE's accreditation scheme to receive and complete HCS instructions electronically. The HCS provides an objective opinion on the condition of a property, based on factual information which is collected at the time of inspection by a qualified Surveyor. Detailed demonstrations will be available throughout the show.

Quest, part of the Landmark Information Group, will also be providing details on the Group's solutions for property professionals, including Metropix residential floor planning tools as well as conveyancing ready reports for contaminated land and flood.

James Sherwood-Rogers, Managing Director of Quest said: "We look forward to providing visitors with demonstrations of a number of our software solutions – all of which have been designed to help streamline the daily workload for surveyors and assessors from both residential and commercial fields."
